Diameter of the bead from left to right: 1, 3/4, 1/2, 3/8. Our top wheels (often called ball transfers when used with the ball face up) are great third contact points for small differential-driven robots. These units have larger diameter-to-weight ratios than industrial units, such as your robot's ability to drive over larger obstacles without adding too much weight. These top wheels are designed for robots weighing up to several kilograms. Larger top wheels are not made for more weight, but rather allow for a greater obstacle distance.
